Rowes Wharf Plaza on The Greenway

This work delves into immigration's stories, portraying struggles and aspirations for a new start. It vividly portrays the uphill battles of those seeking a fresh beginning while grappling with a sense of limbo – a constant push against an immovable force, a feeling of being trapped without control or the ability to move forward. The streets reveal the unwavering determination of immigrants, leaving a lasting imprint on the ground they walk upon. The historic Rowes Wharf on the left, a symbol of trade and arrivals, silently tells the tale of the many people who came seeking safety and a better life in faraway lands.

Inspired by immigrant stories from dancers, self and reflecting upon the documentary movie "Desde Que Llegaste, Mi Corazón Dejó de Pertenerme" by Erin Semine Kökdil, The New Yorker Documentary.

Public Displays of Motion "Passeggiata: A Stroll With Sinners and Saints"

Saturday, September 16 | 11a & 3p

Saturday, October 7 | 2:30p

Carolyn Lynch Garden on The Greenway

Peter DiMuro/Public Displays of Motion has woven a metaphoric response to the Italian North End's heritage, conjuring up some myths- old and newly created- about our ancestors, celebrating the saints and sinners of our lineage. The performance occurs in two parts designed to elicit a smile or two, and a yearning for an Italian pastry: first, an installation of saints waiting for their parade and second, a procession in search of its festival. Driven by collaborative models, the company brings together a sum of ages, races, and queer and disabilities communities to create and bring diverse subject matter to their works on site, on stage, on screens.

Jean Appolon Expressions (JAE) "Popouri"

Saturday, September 23 | 11a & 3p

Saturday, October 7 | 1:30p

Armenian Heritage Park on The Greenway

Jean Appolon truly sees the similarities between the immigrant trauma experiences by both Haitians and Armenians, especially here at this site, Armenian Heritage Park. Trauma is very universal, as well as how we can collectively heal. Often, countries have some kind of traditional, folkloric dance and practice and often these dances are ignored. This work, Popouri, is helping to bring light to this type of folkloric tradition and identity, while uplifting how it can support the healing process. JAE's movement style is grounded in accessibility and aims to inspire audiences to move and breathe together.

Auntie Kay & Uncle Frank Chin Park on The Greenway

Continuum Dance Project (CDP), led by choreographers/co-directors Adriane Brayton and Fernadina Chan, has created its newest work Becoming Water in the Auntie Kay & Uncle Frank Chin Park on The Rose Kennedy Greenway. Focusing on the Boston Chinatown community, the company has utilized imagery from Cynthia Yee's 'Hudson Street Chronicles' to create a work that honors the experiences of the people of Chinatown, while celebrating their resilient spirit. Exploring the element water as thematic inspiration, the work strives to illuminate the authentic voice of the residents displaced by urban renewal and share their adaptability and toughness. Becoming Water reflects on the universal themes of Love, Family, Food, Work, Struggle, and Community while engaging with the history and geography of Boston's Chinatown.
